Why fight over shadows?

There is a fable about a wealthy man who hired a peasant and his camel for a long trip across the desert. The rich man rode the camel while the peasant led it across the dry sands.

In the hot noonday sun, they stopped for a rest. Since there was no shade but the camel, they began arguing about who had more of a right to sit in the camel's shadow: the peasant who owned it, or the rich man who had rented it to ride.

Their voices grew louder and louder as the argument went on. Finally the camel got frightened and ran away—leaving them stranded in the middle of the burning desert.

Moral: Don't let yourself get so determined to be right that you lose what you're fighting for.

Chocolate Math

Impress your friends with this cocoa-inspired formula, already an Internet fad!

- Pick the number of times a week that you would like to have chocolate.
- Multiply this number by 2.
- Add 5.
- Multiply that number by 50.
- If you have already had your birthday this year, add 1760. If you haven't, add 1759.
- Now subtract the four digit year that you were born.
- You should have a three-digit number. This first digit of this figure is your original number (i.e., how many times you want to eat chocolate each week).
- The next two numbers are...
YOUR AGE!

Connect with your family

One of the biggest challenges of today's time-pressed parents is having quality time with their children. Fostering a true connection with kids and family doesn't always have to mean scaling back your work hours or stepping off the career fast track. Try these suggestions to stay connected:

- Hold weekly family meetings. Use them to schedule everyone's activities for the week, from school meetings and athletic events to family outings. Give your kids a say on decisions; it makes them feel like an integral part of the family.
- Share your child's interests. Yes, that means enduring their rap music on the family-room stereo. Get them subscriptions to magazines associated with their hobbies or activities, and commit to reading at least one kid-related article each month to stay abreast of their world.
- Share your work with them. Bring them to your workplace. Show them what you do and how your work relates to the entire organization. When you have a particular success at work, celebrate it with your family.

What did the DNA say to the other DNA?
Do these genes make me look fat?

What did one ocean say to the other ocean?
Nothing, they just waved.

What do you call a deer with no eyes?
No eye deer.

What did the tie say to the hat?
You go on a head. I'll just hang around.

Why did the cookie visit the doctor?
He felt crummy.

What do you call the cabs lined up at the Dallas Airport?
The yellow rows of taxis.

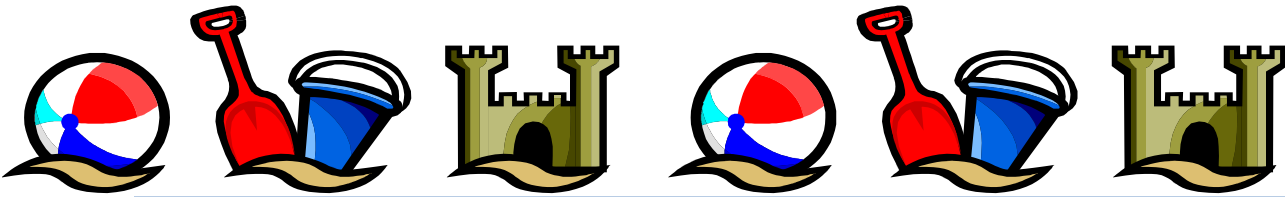

Did you hear about the two antennas that got married?
The wedding was terrible, but the reception was great.

Take care of your body. It's the only place you have to live.
—Jim Rohn

I've got a theory that if you give 100 percent all of the time, somehow things will work out in the end.
—Larry Bird

Don't worry that children never listen to you; worry that they are always watching you.
—Robert Fulghum
